The program aimed to educate fellow students about this prevalent health condition among women and highlight the importance of early detection, management, and lifestyle modifications. In this connection, female students of all branches of pharmacy and lady faculty have attended the program. Some students of Pharm.D 3rd year have actively participated and addressed the fellow students and staff regarding PCOS and its impact on quality of life of girl. Around 85 girl students and women faculty members have actively participated in awareness sessions.

Objective:

The primary objective of the PCOS awareness program was to shed light on the symptoms, causes, and potential health implications associated with PCOS. The initiative also aimed to debunk myths and misconceptions surrounding the syndrome and empower individuals with knowledge to seek timely medical advice.

Activities:

The program commenced with an introduction to PCOS by a panel of medical professionals and experts, providing comprehensive information about the syndrome, its symptoms, and its impact on women's health. The presentation included interactive sessions to address queries and concerns from the audience.

Various engaging activities were organized to disseminate information effectively, such as poster presentations, pamphlets, and educational videos demonstrating the signs and symptoms of PCOS. Additionally, testimonials from individuals diagnosed with PCOS, sharing their experiences and coping strategies, were included to provide a personal perspective on managing the condition.

Furthermore, practical guidance on lifestyle modifications, dietary considerations, and the importance of regular exercise in managing PCOS was discussed. Students were encouraged to adopt healthy habits and seek medical advice if experiencing any symptoms associated with PCOS.

Evidence of success:

The PCOS awareness program received active participation and engagement from fellow students and faculty members. There is a significant increase in awareness and understanding of PCOS among the attendees.

Participants expressed appreciation for the comprehensive information provided during the program, with many acknowledging a better understanding of the symptoms and possible ways to manage and seek medical help if needed. Some attendees also pledged to disseminate this knowledge within their social circles to create more awareness about PCOS.

Moreover, the program facilitated an open discussion environment, enabling students to ask questions and seek clarifications, thus breaking down barriers and stigmas associated with discussing women's health issues.

Conclusion:

The PCOS awareness program organized by students at AIPS College was successful in achieving its objectives of educating the college community about the significance of PCOS awareness, early detection, and healthy lifestyle choices. The event fostered an environment of knowledge sharing, support, and encouragement among peers.

AIPS College remains committed to organizing such informative events to promote health awareness and empower individuals to take charge of their well-being.

We extend our gratitude to all participants, speakers, and contributors whose involvement was instrumental in making this program a success.

Report on Beach Cleaning Program: Seaside Sanitation Initiative by AIPS

Introduction:

On, 19-12-2018 a Beach cleaning program was organized by Pharm.D students of Avanathi Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences. The program aimed to contribute to the local community's well-being and promote environmental awareness among the students. Beach cleaning mainly includes removal of solid litter, organic matter deposited on beach or coastline by the tide, local visitors or tourists. Humans pollute beaches with materials such as bottles, bags, fishing nets, surgical masks etc.

The beach cleaning programme was conducted to clean, collect and removal of waste across the bheemili coastline and creating awareness about the harm caused by waste trash and its effect on the marine ecosystem. 60 students along with the faculty member (S.Hotta) cleaned 4.5 km of coastline and collected 25 kgs of garbage (plastic bottles, bags, straws, fishing nets, surgical masks, broken glasses, sharp metals, hard plastics etc).

Objective:

The primary objective of the Beach Cleaning Program was to actively involve the community in safeguarding the marine environment by removing litter, plastic waste, and debris from the beach. Additionally, the program sought to educate participants about the detrimental effects of pollution on marine life and the ecosystem.

Activities:

The event commenced at 10:00AM with a brief introductory session by faculty members and environmental experts from our college, highlighting the significance of preserving coastal areas and the adverse impacts of pollution on marine biodiversity. Volunteers, consisting of college students, faculty, and local residents, actively participated in the cleanup drive.

Equipped with gloves, trash bags, and litter pickers, participants spread out across the beach, meticulously collecting discarded items such as plastic bottles, wrappers, cigarette butts, and other debris. The cleanup operation spanned 2hrs, during which volunteers worked tirelessly to ensure no area was left unclear.

Moreover, interactive sessions were conducted intermittently, emphasizing the need for responsible waste disposal, recycling practices, and reducing single-use plastic consumption. This educational aspect aimed to instill a sense of environmental responsibility in the participants.

Evidence of success:

The Beach Cleaning Program garnered significant attention and participation from the local community. Over 60 individuals joined hands to clean up Bheemili Beach, collecting an estimated amount of 25kgs of waste and debris.

The event not only contributed to the immediate cleanliness of the beach but also served as a catalyst for raising awareness about the importance of maintaining a clean environment. Participants gained insights into the detrimental effects of littering and pledged to adopt more sustainable practices in their daily lives.

Conclusion:

The Beach Cleaning Program conducted by AIPS College at Bheemili Beach was a resounding success in promoting environmental consciousness and community engagement. The enthusiastic participation and dedication of volunteers underscored the collective commitment to safeguarding our coastal ecosystems.

Moving forward, we aim to organize similar initiatives regularly, fostering a culture of environmental stewardship within the community and inspiring sustainable practices to protect our precious natural resources.

We extend our gratitude to all participants, supporters, and sponsors who contributed to the success of this noble endeavour.

- The program was concluded with the slogans:

Keep calm and keep our beaches clean

Report on Awareness Program on Waste Disposal: Eco-Friendly Waste Disposal Initiative by AIPS

Introduction:

On 14-02-2019, AIPS College organized an awareness program on waste disposal at public places as part of our commitment to environmental sustainability and community education. The program aimed to educate and engage the public in adopting responsible waste management practices to ensure cleaner and healthier surroundings. A total of 100 students along with faculty member (Dr.T.Rushi Naidu) have actively taken part in the awareness program.

Objective:

Evidence of success:

The awareness program received significant participation from members of the local community, including residents, students, and representatives from nearby establishments. Surveys conducted before and after the program indicated a notable increase in knowledge and awareness among participants regarding proper waste disposal methods.

Furthermore, post-program evaluations revealed that a considerable percentage of attendees expressed willingness to adopt better waste management practices in their daily lives. They acknowledged the significance of responsible waste disposal and committed to implementing the knowledge gained during the program in their communities.

Additionally, local businesses and authorities expressed interest in collaborating with the college to implement sustainable waste management practices in public places, indicating a potential for ongoing partnerships and initiatives.

Conclusion:

The enthusiastic response and willingness of attendees to implement these practices in their surroundings highlight the success of the program. Moving forward, AIPS College intends to continue organizing similar educational initiatives to further empower communities and create a lasting impact on environmental conservation efforts.

We extend our appreciation to all participants, guest speakers, and volunteers whose contributions were instrumental in making this program a success.

Report On Beat Air Pollution Program

Introduction:

On the occasion of World Environment Day 05-06-2018, Avanthi Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences organized a comprehensive awareness program focused on combating air pollution. The event aimed to educate local people, auto drivers about the importance of addressing air pollution and fostering sustainable practices to preserve our environment.

Program Highlights:

The awareness program on “Beat Air Pollution” was conducted by 50 B.Pharm and Pharm.D students along with the faculty members (J.Basha, N.Hema Durga) from the “Environmental Club” of Avanthi Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences. On this World Environment Day, at Tagarapuvalasa locality our students educated 60 household people and Auto drivers about the harmful effects of air pollution and better ways to prevent air pollution. Air pollution refers to the presence of harmful or excessive quantities of substances including gases, particles, and biological molecules in the Earth's atmosphere that can cause harm to living organisms and the environment. Air pollution can lead to respiratory diseases (such as asthma and bronchitis), cardiovascular issues, lung cancer, and other health problems. It can harm ecosystems, damage buildings and monuments, contribute to climate change, and impact agricultural productivity. Reducing air pollution is crucial to safeguard human health, protect the environment, and mitigate the impacts of climate change. Collaboration between governments, industries, and individuals is essential to address this global issue.
